Asking for too much

Rebecca Chambers (1982) had asked for the “hammer clause” last month so she could be out awaiting sentencing. Circuit Judge Tom Jones had asked her not to do that. Last Friday, Chambers admitted she wished she hadn’t asked.

Chambers, who was late for her court appearance, failed a drug test ordered by Jones Friday.

By asking for the hammer clause, which increases the time a person must serve if they fail the provisions, Chambers had agreed to face 15 years instead of the five recommended in a plea agreement.

In obvious anguish, Jones said, “I begged Ms. Chambers not to take the hammer clause.”

Chambers then started talking with her attorney, Monica Lacy, while Jones was talking to her. Jones’ anguish turned to ire when he said, “Ms. Chambers, you ought to be listening to me when we’re talking about your life.”

Jones then asked Chambers if she had anything to say.

Crying, Chambers said, “I tried to do what I was supposed to do. I apparently messed up. I tried. I really did try.”

Jones then asked Commonwealth’s Attorney Heather Combs what her recommendation was, considering the hammer clause.

Combs said, “At least 10.”

Jones then told Chambers there are two kinds of drug deals, the good and the bad. Bad ones, he said, are when somebody dies, such as being shot at the scene. Good drug deals, Jones said, are really bad because someone can overdose.

“You’ve got three Class D felonies. They have impact on people,” Jones said. He was referring to her three drug trafficking charges.

Jones then spent some time writing on the docket. He then spoke.

“I’m going to follow the Commonwealth’s recommendation,” Jones said. He then ordered her to the prisoner dock.

Also in court Friday, attorneys for Melvin G. Slone (1958) said they were still sifting through discovery evidence and requested a status hearing for October 17.

Slone is charged with the April murder of downtown businesswoman Martha Hollar. He is also charged with arson in the burning of her mobile home.

James F. Deaton (1946) pled guilty to trafficking in a controlled substance in the first degree. The Commonwealth is recommending that he serve three years. Sentencing is scheduled for October 17.

A bench warrant was issued for Donald G. Shuler (1982). He was scheduled for a diversion review.

Chad Caudill (1993) admitted to violating the terms of his diversion. Three years is recommended. Sentencing will be in September.

C.J. Sipple (1977) admitted to violating the terms of his probation. He was sentenced to two years.

Amanda McIntosh (1985) will have a diversion revocation hearing September 19. She faces five years in prison.

The diversion for Glenn Turner (1982) was voided after he admitted to absconding. He faces five years.

James Mosey (1989) pled guilty to theft by failure to make required disposition of property.

Michael H. Lynch (1988) will have a diversion revocation hearing September 19. He faces five years. The same is true for his wife, Megan E. Lynch (1991).

Heriverito Ortiz (no year given) entered an Alford Plea to Medicaid fraud. He is facing three years.

State seeks death penalty for Slone

The Commonwealth’s Attorney today filed a motion seeking the death penalty for Melvin Slone of Beattyville for the April 11 shooting death of local businesswoman Martha Hollar.

Slone is alleged to have shot Hollar in the face the night of April 11, and then setting her mobile home on fire.

In her motion, Commonwealth’s Attorney Heather Combs said that she was seeking the death penalty because of aggravating circumstances.

Those circumstances are that he has a prior murder conviction in Lee County, and he committed arson.

Slone had served 20 years for a murder that was resolved in 1980.

No trial date has yet been set in the case.

Group seeks regional collaboration and identity to help Eastern Kentucky

By Coriá Bowen

Institute for Rural Journalism and Community Issues, University of Kentucky

The political leaders who organized the bipartisan Shaping Our Appalachian Region initiative have long stressed that one key to success will be creation of a more cohesive regional identity, with more collaboration across county lines.

That has been the focus of SOAR’s Regional Collaboration and Identity Working Group, which had its final meeting last week at Natural Bridge Resort Park. The meeting drew 21 people, who sat at a round table discussing the assets and challenges of their counties and a few solid ideas to enhance the collaboration and sense of regional identity in Eastern Kentucky. As they introduced themselves, some participants endorsed the idea of blurring county lines, combining areas that share similar goals and interests and want to work together.

“Everyone identifies themselves by a county. ... There is a lot of territorialism, I’ve found out,” said Ohio native Nancy Hamann, owner of Scenic Cabin Rentals and Daniel Boone Trading Post in Lee, Powell and Wolfe counties. “Lots of people want to be here ... You need to go out and capitalize on that.”

Peter Hille, executive vice president of the Berea-based Mountain Association for Community Economic Development, said he also had “an outsider’s perspective,” but of a different kind. “When we talk about identity, we usually hear of people from the outside talking bad about people from Eastern Kentucky,” Hille said. “Some of the worst things I’ve heard said about East Kentuckians is from the middle-class East Kentuckians. ... We have an internal identity problem.”

Hamann said some people think SOAR will fail, as other attempts to improve the region have, but Gerry Roll of Hazard, executive director of the Foundation for Appalachian Kentucky, told the group, “Never mind ‘We’ve tried it before.’ ‘Let’s try it again, together.’”

Participants offered several ideas, such as capitalizing on the arts, tax reform, increasing entrepreneurial education, marketing for small-business job opportunities, reallocation of coal severance-tax funds, getting tourism initiatives recognized as economic development, improving the region’s overall health.

The region and the state need laws banning smoking in workplaces and enclosed public spaces to reduce the number of people who smoke, Clark County Health Director Scott Lockard said. “We can appreciate the history of tobacco while at the same time acknowledging it’s the number one killer in the state.”

Though this was the working group’s last meeting, “Regional collaboration is an ongoing process,” said Sandy Runyon, the working group chair, who reports to the SOAR executive committee. “This topic will continue as the SOAR initiative continues and will be really important as we move on down the road.”

County supports PEP, homeless

The Lee County Fiscal Court last Thursday agreed to financial support for People Encouraging People (PEP) and for the Lee County Helping Hands for Aiding Homeless People.

The court also approved the county treasurer’s settlement for Fiscal Year 20213-14.

The court agreed to: hire Russell Fox as a full-time probationary equipment operator at $11 an hour; Phillip Cole as a paramedic at $12 an hour; Doug Wilder as a deputy sheriff at $7.50 an hour; and, Darrius Campbell as a paramedic at $12 an hour. Robert Engle was hired full time as an EMT probationary at $8.50 an hour.

Road work starting on KY 2016 & KY 587 in Lee

Weather permitting, a paving project is scheduled to begin in Lee County today. Resurfacing is to be done on 3.55 miles of KY 2016 (Big Andy Ridge) and 1.88 miles of KY 587 (Farmers Ridge). Drivers should expect delays on these routes this week.

Search and rescue

Members of the Lee County and Estill County Rescue Squads had a joint exercise last Saturday, August 16th. For more on this see “Thank you” on page 6.

Welcome home, dear hearts, welcome home... Get in here and grab some coffee or sumfin. No feeding donuts or rolls to the “pitiful” looking critters who have their paws on your legs and them sad eyes looking at you... They are masters of applying the guilty concious complex... Trust me, I know!

Have I mentioned “I HATE TIX?” Well, let me tell you I do! Nature lover that I might be, I really must learn to be more selective in my choices of associates and friends..Now, THERE is an understatement! Somehow over the past two summers or so I have become the designated adoptor of any and all delinquent ticks here in the mountains! (I ain’t ever gonna go near D.C...that could be life threatening!) Ticks have been planning this for a while because I feel they are too well organized! I open the front door - I turn around and there is a tick crawling up my caftan... I sit on the love seat - Here’s one on my arm.. Their favorite meeting spot is the back of both knees. Can you say “lumpy golf ball in reverse?” and I don’t golf. I’m not even gonna go into the itches... sheesh!!!

Ants seem to like my cooking... I have an army of lil black ants attacking the kitchen at the moment!

Now, let me remind y’all of what a sweet lil ol’ lady I am...in my better moments (would these lovely greens exaggerate?) Oh yeah. Well, I rolled out the other day.. stagger to bathroom (TMI?) take care of stuff there... head for the kitchen.. COFFEE!!! I get to the split at the end of the hall way... Holy chit! Now what!?!?

I have had an over nite hit/attack by the ‘paper towel brigade’!!! (Have I mentioned I hate dogs????) lololol Do y’all have any idea how far a new roll of paper towels will go when shredded???? Don’t even ask! lolol I got so tickled tho... Kinda goes with the territory when you have a house full of young’uns... two legged or four legged ... don’t matter which or both... Let’s see now, I need a bush-hog, a back-hoe and a dozer! Them’s just for starters...

Guess that’s it for the moment... Take care all of mine; go in safety always. Remember that being a “tree hugger” type is the best way to but but IT does have its hazards... lolol

Many hugs and much love... remember to get the giggles once in a while... meems the TerMOMinator

Reserve your space now for the community yard sale in the region on Sept. 6 at The Center for Rural Development in Somerset

The Center for Rural Development in Somerset is reserving vendor space on a first-come, first-serve basis for the largest community yard sale in the Lake Cumberland region.

The 2014 “Fall in to Cash” community yard sale will be held on Saturday, Sept. 6, from 8 a.m.-4 p.m. in the South Parking Lot at The Center. Spaces are limited. The deadline for vendors to reserve space is Aug. 29th.

“This event is the perfect opportunity for individuals, churches, school and athletic clubs, and other community organizations to make some extra money to support their work,” said Laura Glover, director of sales and events at The Center. “We’re also looking for established merchants and vendors to sell their wares, nonprofit organizations, and others to be a part of the region’s largest community yard sale.”

The cost to reserve vendor space for individuals is $10 per parking spot or two spots for $15; nonprofit organizations, $25 per parking spot; and merchants/vendors, $50 per parking spot. Individuals, nonprofits, and merchants/vendors may reserve a covered tent for an additional charge of $20. There is a limited supply of covered tents. Each vendor space comes with one six-foot table and two chairs.

To reserve vendor space for the 2014 “Fall in to Cash” community yard sale, contact The Center at 606-677-6000. All space must be reserved in advance and payment made either by cash or check. There are no refunds. On-site reservations or payments will not be accepted.

The community yard sale is open to the public. There is no admission charge. In case of inclement weather, the event will be moved inside The Center. The Center is located at 2292 South U.S. 27 (at Traffic Light 15) in Somerset, Ky.

In my opinion
By Edmund Shelby

Beattyville editor stands by article on McConnell, jobs
Edmund Shelby, Special to The Courier-Journal

You have to give it to Sen. Mitch McConnell’s spin doctors. They even have Joe Gerth questioning a fellow journalist.

Referring to the senator’s April comments to me about not being responsible for bringing jobs to Lee County, The Courier-Journal’s Gerth wrote on July 27, “Exactly what McConnell meant and whether or not Shelby took McConnell out of context remains up for debate, but that hasn’t stopped Grimes (McConnell’s Democratic opponent Alison Lundergan Grimes) and the Senate Majority PAC from hammering McConnell on the issue.”

I wish Gerth had checked with me about the context of the senator’s response to my simple question.

McConnell was to appear at a luncheon on April 18 at the Lee County Community Center. On the flyer the appearance was touted as, “For luncheon and update on Washington.”

I was busy that day, and did not have time for a luncheon. I thought I might get a question or two in before Sen. McConnell went into the luncheon, and to possibly get a picture.

Of course the senator was late, but when he did arrive I was able to stop him in a hallway of the building. I asked him if I could get a picture, and took one of him with some of his supporters, including State Senate President Robert Stivers, who I know.

I then asked Sen. McConnell what he was going to do to bring jobs to Lee County. It was a question I was going to ask any politician who visited our economically struggling county.

He appeared to be caught off guard at first. Then he said, “Economic development is a Frankfort issue. That is not my job. It is the primary responsibility of the state Commerce Cabinet.”

I then followed up asking about public works projects.

He said he was interested in them, but added, “Most comes from the state, though.”

The senator then said that it is his responsibility to protect jobs by “pushing back” against the Obama administration’s restrictions on the coal industry.

“Oil and gas are big here,” he said of Lee County. “They (the Obama Administration) are making it hard on them too.”

That was the context of the brief interview.

I did not listen to his comments during the luncheon, where it has been reported, he again reiterated his position that it is his responsibility to fight against the administration to protect coal jobs.

The senator’s spinmeisters have also said that his “message got lost in translation.”

I guess I’m just simple-minded, but he and I were both speaking in English. I do not see how anything so simple as a two-question interview, spoken in the same language, could be lost in translation.

It doesn’t wash.

I firmly believe that Sen. McConnell committed the cardinal sin of all career politicians: He gave an honest answer to a journalist’s question.

Secretary of State Grimes also did what any politician would do when handed with such a gem: She attacked.

We asked the same question of her when she came to town, and she responded by pointing to her jobs program.

McConnell’s primary opponent, Louisville businessman Matt Bevin, came to town, and was asked the same question.

He too attacked the senator, but did not offer a plan to bring jobs, except to say that he knew how to do so.

Steve Wilson, my colleague with The Paducah Sun wrote, “Maybe McConnell was thinking about the surveys that show journalists well down the list of most trusted professions. Maybe he figured his spin would prevail because people are more likely to believe a U.S. senator than a bumbling small town editor.

“Two problems with that attitude. Shelby, 65, is no bumbler. He’s a past president of the Kentucky Press Association and has won

It’s not that everyone needs to publicly air every problem in life. But many more people who need help would surely say so if Americans could admit we stigmatize mental illness. The shame associated with suicide prevents us from understanding what causes more than 30,000 people to take their own lives every year in the United States.

A different view By Betty Crabtree

Did you ever talk to someone and you know they were not listening to you? Sometimes it can be frustrating, sometimes they are downright rude! You want to say, "excuse me, I'm talking to you," but of course we don't, don't you wish that some people (perhaps all need to be reminded) would just listen to the following?

Come, children, listen closely; I'll give you a lesson in God worship. Who out there has a lust for life? Can't wait each day to come upon beauty? (Well then, my words) Guard your tongue from profanity, and no more lying through your teeth. Turn your back on sin; do something good. Embrace peace _ don't let it get away! God keeps an eye on his friends, his ears pick up every moan and groan. God won't put up with rebels; he'll cut them from the pack. Is anyone crying for help? God is listening, ready to rescue you. If your heart is broken, you'll find God right there; if you're kicked in the gut, he'll help you catch your breath. Disciples so often get into trouble; still, God is there every time. He's your bodyguard, shielding every bone; not even a finger gets broken. The wicked commit slow suicide; they waste their lives hating the good. God says for each slave's freedom (and he did in Christ Jesus at the cross, my words) no one who runs to him loses out! The Message Bible Ch. 34:11-22.

Preacher Bob's Korner By Billy A. Davis

Anchor

We know that an anchor is used to keep a vessel steady, keep it from drifting. Every man needs an anchor to his life to keep him from drifting. They say a vessel adrift at sea is very dangerous, a threat to others.

The Problem:

No direction

A life with no direction has no purpose. A drifting vessel, a man has nothing to guide them. As we look around we can spot not a few of these kind of persons,

No Destination

As we say they are not focused on anything worth working for, they put out no effort for things that are permanent and lasting. Some one has said if we have no goals (destination) we will sure hit them.

No Determination

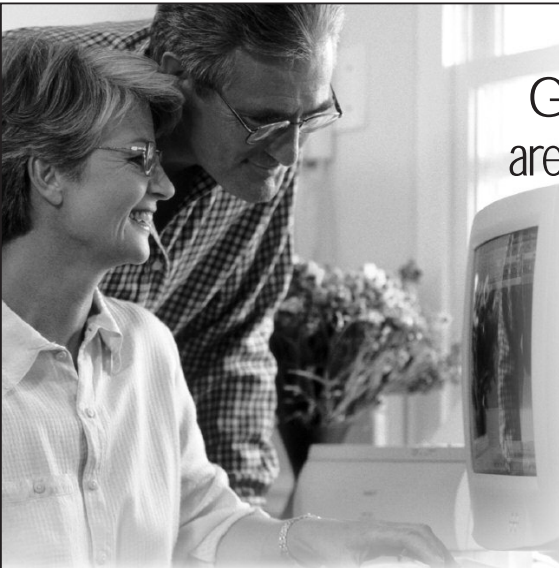

Do you think an drifting man, with nothing meaningful to anchor him reflect any kind of determination. There are those young people in their early day, reflect determination to accomplish things in life, but where along the way they lose it and just drift through life. I think a man who will take the challenge of mountain climbing show a determination. We need determination don't let anything stop it. "I hate to see things done by halves - if it be right, do it boldly - if it be wrong leave it undone. (Gilpin)

"....hope (in Christ) we have as an anchor to our soul, both sure and steadfast. (Heb. 6:19)

KY 2024 in Owsley County to be closed Saturday, Aug. 23

In order to replace a drainage pipe, the Kentucky Department of Highways plans to close KY 2024 in Owsley County on Saturday, Aug. 23. The road will be closed at milepoint 3.1, north of Ricetown. The project will begin around 7:30 a.m. and will be completed as quickly as possible.

No detour is available. Motorists should plan their trips accordingly. Provisions will be made should emergency vehicles need access to areas beyond the closure point.

In case of inclement weather, the closure will be postponed until another suitable date.

Thank You

Doris Summers, sister of the late Martha Hollar, wants to thank everyone in Lee County for the friendship they shared with Martha, and for the support given to the family since her death.

THANK YOU ESTILL CO. RESCUE SQUAD!!!

Saturday, August 16th, the Lee County Rescue Squad (LCRS) held a very successful land training exercise. A good part of that success was due to the generosity of the Estill co. Rescue Squad who programmed and donated several radios to LCRS. Greg Angel, LCRS Captain said the county offered to purchase (through a Homeland Security grant), the new digital radios did not cover all areas of the county and did not allow for communication between counties. Both are critical for any successful rescue squad. Estill Co. Rescue Squad participated in our last river drag training. They became aware of the problem we were having obtaining the necessary equipment and offered the new radios. For sometime now, Lee County and Estill County Rescue Squads have participated in some joint training exercises, shared information, and maintained a good working relationship. It all goes to show how beneficial it is to work together. So thanks again Estill County Rescue Squad. We've got your back!!

Two things I've learned Campaigning:

1. Lots of people have big dogs in Lee County.
2. People want to be heard. Let's talk.

Eye to Eye

NERVOUS ABOUT A TWITCH

Involuntary twitching of the eyelid (usually the lower lid), known as "myokymia," tends to occur mostly in one eye among young, healthy individuals. The twitching, which may last from several hours to several days, is due to contractions of a portion of the "orbicularis oculi" muscle or other facial muscles. The twitching is commonly triggered by stress, caffeine, and lack of sleep. By reducing these factors, the twitching can often be eliminated. However, if the problem persists on a daily basis for two months or longer, treatment with an injection of Botox may eliminate it. If myokymia starts in one eyelid and spreads to other parts of the face, further examination is strongly recommended.

Our mission at KENTUCKY EYE INSTITUTE is to enhance the quality of our patients' lives by compassionately providing the highest level of eye care. We have a long history of excellence performing procedures to help patients reduce, or eliminate, their need for corrective eyewear. Since many diseases have no clear symptoms in early stages, by the time a person seeks help for impaired vision, the damage is done. When was the last time you had a comprehensive eye examination? Call 606-666-9393 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 540 Jett Drive. We specialize in "EYE CARE FOR ALL AGES."

P.S. If Botox injections do not eliminate myokymia, "myectomy" (surgical removal of the eyelid- and brow-squeezing muscles) may be required in severe cases.

That's how many Kentuckians, on average, read each copy of a newspaper.

You see, one reads it, then passes it on. Then another reads it and passes it on. And so forth.

So if you're trying to reach Kentuckians, advertise in the newspaper.

Pass it on.
